LABOR DAY.

The Occasion Fitly Celebrated in Colorado Springs.

AN INTERESTING PROCESSION.

Displays of Business Enterprise and Stations Creditable Business Displays—Speeches in Alamo Park—Details of the Day.

Labor's great festal day has always been heartily celebrated in Colorado Springs since the state legislature first established it, and each year the city has had more occasion to feel proud of her stalwart army of workers, their manly, orderly bearing in parade, their sensible, reasonable meetings, and their honest treatment of the questions in which they are interested.

Yesterday's celebration of the day was thorough, complete and successful. The banks of course were closed, and many of the stores remained closed all day. By noon the holiday was complete and the people commenced to pour out into the streets and to prepare either to watch or to take part in the great parade. The crowd of onlookers gathered along Tejon street and Pike's Peak avenue, and it was the good-natured crowd that is a characteristic of the city.

The parade was formed on Nevada avenue in front of the city hall. The arrangements were complete so that little trouble was experienced in marshaling the different organizations into their proper places and the march started at a little before three o'clock, Captain Gathright, with a brass new club with a dazzling silk cord on it, led the platoon of eight neatly uniformed policemen. Then came Marshal Dana on horseback and next Conductor M. O. Davies, resplendent in his drum major uniform with the high white shako. The band were in their pretty uniforms, looked and marched well and played perfectly. There were fifteen of them.

Typographical Union No. 82 came next. There were thirty compositors in line, distinguished by a neat badge of cream satin with blue lettering. They were led by the president, Mr. Thomas McCaffrey, and the vice-president, Mr. E. P. Wingester, acted as aide.

There are not many cigar makers in Colorado Springs but there are enough to make a union and they turned out to the number of twelve. They chose for their badge the blue label which is put upon cigar boxes to distinguish the "union made cigar." This slip of blue paper was pinned to a red ribbon on each coat lapel. Mr. Robert Stein led the ranks.

The trade having the largest representation was the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners which had two lodges present, one from this city and one from Colorado City. The Colorado City lodge had a fine display of the cigar makers' hand-some emblematic banner was draped with crape in memory of their brave brother workman, John Henning, who met his death at Cripple Creek a short time ago. The knights of the hammer and saw were clean new white aprons and red and gold badges. They were led by their president, Mr. John L. Nelson.

The Bricklayers and Masons' union followed the other constructive trade. They had light blue badges with the name of the union on them in black and a picture of Pike's Peak in red. There were thirty of these toilers and Mr. M. Horick was their leader.

The Colorado Springs Clerks' and Merchants' association, consisting of the owners and salesmen of the various stores of the city, turned out to the number of forty, led by Mr. Frank Waters. Their badge was blue satin with distinctive black bow ring.

Then came twenty neatly dressed gentlemen whose red and gold badges announced that they were the members of the Colorado Springs Tailors' union. President Fiske was in command and the knights of the shears and goose followed in excellent marching order.

The Barbers' union perhaps was the most distinctively attired of any. Each man wore a snow white jacket and a brilliant bouquet, and carefully shaded his complexion with a silk umbrella. President F. M. Pierson marshaled twenty-four of them.

There was a good many workmen from Colorado City in the procession, but none of them were members of Colorado Springs unions. The thriving little city has, however, a large number of carpenters in her borders and they have a separate union, which followed the barbers. The men all wore white aprons and very handsome silver emblems on blue satin. There were twenty of them under the leadership of their president, Mr. C. G. Callais.

The Painters and Decorators union was not fully represented, but there were twenty men in line, with President George Alter leading.

Perhaps the most thoroughly representative trade display was that of the tinners, of whom there were fourteen. The president, Mr. C. C. Smith, wore a plug hat made entirely of polished tin, complete in every detail, with a brass hat band. Each man carried a tin cane, wore a badge of tin in shape of a pair of tinner's shears and they carried an appropriately inscribed tin banner.

The list of the trade representations was that of Fidelity Lodge, United Association of Plumbers, Gas Fitters, Steam Fitters and Steam Fitters' Helpers of the United States and Canada. To properly present the name two tracks were linked together in one long float which was properly decorated with bunting, while the majority of the alphabet, being the initials of the union's name, was displayed on the banner above. On the float were [illegible], a gas fitter's bench, plumber's making joints and a big tank from which small streams of water on each side flowed out upon the just and unjust who came too close. At the rear end was a hot water heater with fires going, and on one side was a specimen plumber's bill containing a number of amusing items. It was for fixing a leak in a water pipe and the total was $75. President George I. Kelley of the union was in charge and directed the labors of a dozen men in various exhibitions of the trade.

Then came the mayor with the three speakers, the city council of Colorado Springs, representatives of the press and the State Pharmaceutical association and the Colorado City officers, all in carriages. This concluded the trades union part of the parade but there was a large string of floats from various business houses of the city. Thos. Gough, Jr., had out an immense float representing the three departments of his business. In front was a complete candy making establishment in charge of Charles Schwenck. Then came the ice cream freezers in charge of John Duncan and then a bakeshop with Fred. Fuller making some eatable looking cake. The products of each department as fast as made were distributed to the crowd and a screaming laughing mob of them lined the wagon on all sides. Behind came five of Gough's dainty wagons.

The Broadmoor company sent some of their neat looking dairy wagons and Shelton's grocery, the Colorado Oil supply company; Ashby, the jeweler; H. T. O'Donnell the Enterprise Meat market; Ellis Hogan, hay, flour, etc.; Vorhes Bros., clothing; Shields & Morley, [illegible]; Rudolph Hess, of Colorado City, furniture; Rudolph Hess, stoves and tinware, were all represented by appropriate wagons and floats. Stark & Tolve had six wagons out. In front came a heavy truck on which a frame had been constructed and a big [illegible] was displayed and cut up in sight of the crowd as the wagon moved on. Behind came the five delivery wagons of the firm.

The Colorado City Chieftain had a float with a complete printing office, and General Manager Griffith was in the rear and threw out and delivered little "special editions" to the crowd. Little Richard O. Howard had a complete newspaper office on his wagon and the onlookers could hear the buzz of busy brains in the editorial sanctum where ever the wagon stopped. The Star was distributed as fast as it came warm from a printing press.

An interesting feature was the representation made by the city. All the sprinkling carts were in line and beside there was the road machine, roller, a float full of workmen and even a representative of the chain gang.

The parade altogether was a complete success, without an incident or misunderstanding anywhere, and for this much credit is due to Marshal Dana and Mr. E. E. Batty, the president of the Trades assembly, who acted as marshal of the day. He rode a handsome horse up and down the lines, keeping the men in order and seeing that everything was clear.

The line of march was followed but as given in Sunday's GAZETTE, and on South Tejon street, opposite Alamo square, the line countermarched and the unions gathered in a circle about a temporary stand in the center of the park, while the band took possession of the old band stand.

After some stirring music Mayor Sprague called the meeting to order and made a short address. He spoke of the fact that the streets had been providentially sprinkled by bountiful rains and the weather had altogether done all it could to make the occasion as delightful as possible. All the county around the three cities was represented and he was glad to see it. There were some who couldn't work, some who could, but didn't, but the great body of men sought work and did it the best they could, and it was in honor of those that Labor Day was established. They had a right to the holiday and he wished them joy and good in enjoying it. He then introduced Rev. H. H. Bell, who offered an earnest prayer.

After the band played, Mayor Sprague in a humorous speech introduced Rev. E. Edwin Carrington of the M. E. church, South. Mr. Carrington after relating an amusing anecdote to illustrate our feelings in speaking, suggested that the union and non union workmen and employers of the city should arrange a meeting in which they might amicably arrange and discuss the matters at issue between them. He did not think that talking in a lodge room in which only one side was presented or heard, did very much good. Statements had been made to him by men on both sides which could not be true, but toing inside privately the exact truth could not be obtained. He then went into the matter of wages. He thought that if a man was hard up and a person succeeded in getting him to work for $1.00 when his labor was worth $2.00, that person robbed him of fifty cents. He thought that our public bodies should be [illegible] and city [illegible]. He was not in favor of this letting contracts to the lowest bidders without reference to the price of labor or anything else. He did not think, too, that a contractor ought to be made to give bonds if he bore the character of an honest, honorable man. Above all things right should be thought and talked out but he [illegible] to fight by them. He thought that such men ought not to be too exacting about accidental matters. If a man other [illegible] hours and paid union price he should be [illegible] without anything more being asked by the union. The boycott question was another which had defensible and indefensible [illegible]. All these things he thought could be discussed to great advantage in such a meeting as he proposed. The ministers and churches were invited in their [illegible] and the ministers should be present at this meeting.

Mayor Sprague then introduced a gentleman whom he said was a successful merchant as well as the pastor of a church, Rev. A. R. Kiefer. Mr. Kiefer said that he was not only a merchant and a minister, but he was more—a Christian socialist [Great applause]. The present system was all wrong and it was bound to change, either by evolution or by revolution. That there are five ministers on the platform would show that there more apt to come by evolution. Christ was a working man, a carpenter, and next to him in forwarding the cause of labor, was another carpenter, whose name he did not know the man who made the first ballot box. With Christ and the ballot box they could go ahead and accomplish all that they wished; without, they could accomplish nothing. Why did the working men stay away from the churches? They must not judge the churches by some of the congregations of wealthy congregations. Why did they not take the churches and turn them to their ends? They could do this legally by joining the congregations and becoming active, honest workers. The cause of labor was progressing and eight hours was getting to be considered a day's work. He believed it would eventually be six hours, and he thought that that was long enough for any man. Some preachers had suggested that the solution of the labor question lay in more charity on the part of the wealthy. They did not want charity, they wanted justice. He closed by advising his hearers to band themselves together, to elect only friends of labor to the legislature, to the governor's chair, to congress and even to the presidency, and to avoid demagoguery.

Mayor Sprague then introduced Rev. Mr. Osborn, an Episcopal clergyman from Nebraska, whom he said was a member of a Knights of Labor lodge in his home. Mr. Osborn discussed the relation of the church to the labor question and showed that the Christian church was and is the basis of all labor reforms. He referred to some of the reforms that had been wrought by the Knights of Labor, and said the church of Christ was really a great international brotherhood and he advised them all to join it. He referred to the attitude of the Knights on the silver question and gave their reasons for advocating free coinage, and closed by saying that the church of Christ was interested in solving the labor question and wanted their help.

Mayor Sprague then called for three cheers for the speakers. They were given with a will and were followed by three for the mayor and three for the workingman as an abstract personality. Mayor Sprague then gave the men wholesome advice about letting their wives keep their money for them, and about seeking and holding those positions for which they best were fitted. While the band played an appropriate selection the large crowd, which had given close attention to the speaking for over an hour, quietly dispersed, and the formal celebration of Labor day was over.

Moffat's Resignation Accepted.

DENVER, Sept. 7.—The resignation of President Moffat and General-manager Smith have been accepted by the board of Rio Grande directors, and that railway is now without a president and general manager. The resignation went into effect immediately upon its acceptance, official notification of which was received here to-day. As to Mr. Moffat's successor Henry Wolcott, a brother of Senator Wolcott, is the most probable man, though J. J. Hagerman of Colorado Springs has been connected with the appointment.

PEORIA, Ills., Sept. 7.—Miss Kiefer, an aeronaut, fell in Peoria lake to-day. She was [illegible] wind was blowing at the time. When at the height of 8000 feet she cut her parachute loose and descended. The parachute did not [illegible] and she fell into the lake. She was rescued, but was unconscious and it is thought she will die. Miss Kiefer is the wife of the man who fell into the lake a week ago.

LABOR CELEBRATES.

General Observance of the Day Throughout the Country.

THE CUSTOM YEARLY EXTENDS.

Processions and Festivities in Many Cities Both Large and Small—Governor Hill Delivers an Address in Buffalo, N.Y.

DENVER, Sept. 7.—Labor day was generally observed in Denver and throughout the state to-day. In the city all business houses, banks and public offices were closed. The parade, which was the largest ever witnessed in the west, had over 12,000 laboring men in line. It was reviewed by the governor, mayor and other officials. The afternoon was spent at picnic grounds and summer resorts near the city, where dancing and athletic games were the programme for the day.

WET WEATHER IN LEADVILLE.

LEADVILLE, Sept. 7.—It began raining at daylight and kept up a constant pour until 10 o'clock. The Patriotic Order of Sons of America's flag raising and parade had to be postponed. Wet weather interfered with all the Labor day preparations. It cleared off at noon, and the streets were crowded with people. The Caledonia club paraded the streets with bagpipes. The club is holding a picnic in Turner park this afternoon. They give away nearly $200 in prizes. Big crowds are going out by every train. All the business houses were closed at noon and everybody is taking a holiday.

CANON CITY CELEBRATES.

CANON CITY, Sept. 7.—The town is the central point of interest for many miles around to-day and the celebration of Labor day is on a magnificent scale. Fully 3000 laboring men from Pueblo, Denver, Leadville, Aspen, Salida, Coal Creek, Florence and close here are here and participated in the day's programme. A barbecue, speaking, music, athletic sports and a visit to the penitentiary were some of the attractions.

A HOLIDAY IN TORONTO.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 7.—To-day is labor day in Montreal, and the event is being celebrated with great enthusiasm. The city hall, court house, and all the other public buildings are closed and the day is a great holiday for workingmen and their families. A grand procession took place this morning, in which fully 10,000 men took part. The weather is splendid and everything favors the celebration.

AT PEORIA.

PEORIA, O., Sept. 7.—Business was generally suspended here to-day and a parade of over 3000 [illegible] workingmen paraded in honor of labor day. The formal exercises held at Chambersburg [illegible] were delivered by the Hon. J. McBride, national labor commissioner, Hon. J. W. J. Dillon of Pittsburg and Mrs. Julia Foster of Cincinnati.

CHICAGO'S PARADE.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—National colors, labor union banners and emblems of every shade and description took the streets and streets of South Chicago this morning in honor of labor day. The feature of the celebration was the parade, in which over 6000 people took part. The line of march ended at Chatham beach, where the picnic was held in the afternoon.

CELEBRATION AT TOWN.

KEOKUK, Sept. 7.—Labor day here was generally celebrated, the demonstration being the largest and most elaborate ever seen in this city. A number of trade and industrial parade took place during the morning. During the afternoon fully 10,000 people listened to addresses by Governor Boies, candidate Westfall, and Mrs. Lease of Kansas. This evening Governor Boies held an informal reception at Hotel Keokuk.

[illegible] CITY.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 7.—Labor day was generally observed in this city to-day by the various labor organizations. The parade made up of labor unions, was very large. The afternoon [illegible] speech making at the Exposition building by representatives of the various unions. A ball this evening will close the exercises.

AT SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—Labor day was observed here by a partial suspension of business and a parade in which 3500 men participated.

[illegible] PARADE IN [illegible].

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—The labor day parade here was the largest in the history of the city, most factories closing for the day.

LABOR'S [illegible].

DENVER, Sept. 7. Labor day is being celebrated quietly here to-day. The weather is cool and invigorating. The [illegible] consists of a large parade, which occurred early this afternoon, and athletic games now in progress. Everything has gone off smoothly and with quiet enthusiasm.

ST. LOUIS DIVIDED.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7.—The first general observance of Labor day in this city took place to-day. The field in the pavilion was a march through the principal streets of the city. Twenty thousand men were in line. The procession started promptly at 1 o'clock, and after marching through the business portion of the city proceeded to Lindell park, where a splendid programme had been arranged in the way of music, athletic sports, speeches, etc.

AT [illegible].

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 7.—Labor day was celebrated here by the largest parade of union organizations within its history. There was not a union band of music in line. The typographical union, No. 100, carried off the honors of the day. They wore white hats, linen duters and carried canes.

MILWAUKEE'S MARCH.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—Between 3000 and 4000 men representing thirty trades unions paraded the streets about noon today. Floats representing the various trades were distributed through the line.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Governor Hill arrived here early this morning, accompanied by General McEwen and Colonel Rupert. At 10:30 he reviewed the parade from the balcony of the hotel. At 1 o'clock Governor Hill and party started in carriages for the Country club for lunch, passing Fort Porter a salute of seventeen guns was fired in his honor. After lunch the party started for Genesania park where the governor was to deliver an address at the Labor day picnic.

RAIN INTERFERRED AT BOSTON.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—The carrying out of the varied and extensive programme arranged for Labor day has been seriously interfered with by the prevalence of a heavy northeast rain storm which began yesterday and has continued since, effectually preventing the proposed big procession, soaking the hall grounds so that play is impossible and causing the indefinite postponement of numerous picnics.

[illegible] PARADE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The most remarkable among the banners carried in the parade were those carried by the laundrymen. They were in the form of [illegible]. Among them were the following: "Chinese Highbinders Live by Smuggling and Dying Our [illegible]. Amalgamated, Don't Fall for Chinese labor." Another banner bore a representation of a sickly looking [illegible] with the inscription, "A Sad Leprosy." Still another bore the inscription, "The Chinese are Bringing the Blood of the People." It is roughly calculated that the 20,000 parades in the Labor parade. Both sides [illegible] were loud in their applause.

The Colored Line Again.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 7.—Hon. John P. Green of Cleveland came to Cincinnati to participate in the Labor day celebrations of special invitation of the amalgamated council of trades, to make an address. Mr. Green is a colored man. He is the author of the bill making Labor day a legal holiday. He is a lawyer with a fine reputation and is a candidate for the nomination of state senator on the Republican ticket this fall. Mr. Green [illegible] at the Gibson house. He was assigned a room and when the dinner hour arrived he entered the dining room and took his meal. In the evening he went to supper, but was told that he would have to take his meals in the ordinary. Mr. Green objected and reported at the office. Manager Dunbar was called in and the case was laid before him. He said that he wished to treat the man as a gentleman, but he positively could not eat in the public dining room. Mr. Green then paid his bill and went to the Burnett house and secured lodging. The insult became noised about and the labor committee were indignant and reported the matter to a meeting of Republicans. The rooms secured for Major McKinley at the Gibson were at once cancelled and quarters were secured at the Burnett house, where Major McKinley was escorted on his arrival in the city.

Pueblo Folks Real Mad.

DENVER, Sept. 7.—A special from Pueblo says: An immense crowd congregated at the fair grounds here this afternoon to witness Captain Stubbs' Wild West show which was advertised to give a daring exhibition in which real Indians were to take active part. At the first entrance of the dusky redmen the crowd at once perceived that two of them were genuine Indians, the others being Pueblo boys mounted upon poor old ponies. The cry of "fake," "swindle" was at once raised and the crowd made a rush for the manager, demanding their money refunded. But the treasurer, anticipating something of the kind had already [illegible] the proceeds, about $1,000.

The enraged people then seized the gatekeeper and were about to throw him into the lake when cooler counsel prevailed and he was taken to town and turned over to the police. Warrants are out for the proprietors of the show and they will probably be arrested soon.

An Aspen Knights Entertainment.

ASPEN, Colo., Sept. 7.—The city presents a gay holiday appearance on the occasion of the twelfth anniversary of the grand lodge Knights of Pythias jurisdiction of Colorado which begins a three days session here to-morrow night.

Bands are playing, flags are floating and never in the history of Aspen has such extensive preparation been made for the entertainment of visitors within her gates. For two days the crowd has been pouring in, and to judge from present indications the number of visitors to the city this week will exceed by several thousand any previous week.

To-night at 10 o'clock a special train arrived over the Colorado Midland, composed of two sections, with representatives from the Colorado Springs, Denver, Leadville and Salida lodges and of other points throughout the state.

An Electrical Convention.

MONTREAL, Sept. 7.—The annual convention of the National Electrical association of the United States was opened here this afternoon. Nearly 400 delegates are attending the convention, including prominent electricians from all parts of the United States and Canada.

Addresses of welcome were made by Lieutenant Boyle, president of the citizens' committee, Mayor McShane and others. C. R. Hilliard presided at the meeting in place of S. S. Greene, general Knapp and Judge Arnold of Camden, N. J., who is the president. Erastus Wiman, who called upon to address the convention. He was a forcible speech, which was frequently interrupted by applause. In his address he dwelt with electricity as applied to the million. He regretted to impress upon his Canadian friends that as many as had been created, a very small amount of voices employed by the use of electricity on street railroads in America as compared to any other industry in equal space of time.

The electrical exhibition was opened to-night at the Victoria Street skating rink. Judging from the attendance this evening the exhibition will be a success. It was Hon. Sir Donald Smith, and when the machinery was set in motion the rink was illuminated beautifully.

New Worth Living.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—F. L. Carol registered at the Palace hotel this morning as William F. De Young of Fresno. Shortly after and an explosion which shook building in the neighborhood attracted attention to his room and it was found he had committed suicide by exploding a dynamite bomb. His remains were scattered all over the room and one of his arms was found in the street. The window and plastering were broken and furniture damaged. The deceased had been working on a fruit farm near Fresno. He told a number of persons here that he intended taking his life, as he wanted to create a sensation for the newspapers, but in a note to the coroner, which he left, giving his age as 41 years and birthplace as Holland, he says: he committed suicide because life was not worth living.

New York State Ticket.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 7.—The state of the Republican party is agreed on as follows: For governor, J. Sloat Fassett; lieutenant-governor, Philip Becker of Buffalo; secretary of state, J. W. Vrooman; attorney-general, William A. Sutherland; comptroller, Senator Einstein.

Should Becker refuse the nomination for lieutenant governor, it will probably be offered to Wadsworth, and in the event of his refusal, to McAlpin.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—For Colorado: Local showers in eastern; fair in western portion; variable winds; warmer in northwest; stationary temperature in southeast portion.

A Pension Fraud.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 7. Chas. E. Carlile, Mamie Cole, alias Williams, George Philpot, Mr. George D. Brazer, Rev. Noah Jackson and E. Piller were held in $1,500 bail each today on the charge of conspiracy to defraud the government. It is alleged that Mamie Cole, a mulatto aged 20, was married to a 73-year-old colored pensioner named John J. L. Cole, while the latter was lying unconscious upon his death bed and that the other prisoners conspired with her to obtain the continuance of Cole's pension after his death.

Samoan Unrest.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7. A [illegible] Samoan [illegible] steamer Mariposa says that the country is in a state of great unrest. Matafa is still at Malie with 400 or 500 men and has sent out messengers to raise a party in his behalf. It is understood that the government is [illegible] to make a demonstration in the three nations and to punish the natives who refuse to obey Malietoa.

[illegible] action is taken without delay there will probably be trouble.

To Reach Water.

DENVER, Sept. 7.—This afternoon [illegible] inch water main on the Golden avenue bridge and a large stream of water pouring in Rhodes' brick yard, ruin [illegible] brick, making a loss of $10,000.

A Russian Spy Arrested in Afghanistan.

WHEN AUSTRIA WOULD FIGHT.

Nihilists Pleased with the Dismissal of Jews from Russian Police Service—Miners Meeting at Newcastle—Dardanelles Rumors.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—A Vienna dispatch says that the German kaiser expressed a high opinion of the appearance of the discipline of the three Bosnian battalions that took part in the Austrian maneuvers. They are unusually tall, stalwart and finely built fellows, and among them are to be found representatives of all the three populations in the occupied provinces, Roman Catholics, Orthodox Servians and Mahommedans. They will not return immediately to Bosnia, but will remain for some time in Vienna, and special arrangements have accordingly been made in their barracks for religious requirements, such as ablutions and religious observances of food suitable for the Mussulmen, who are also provided with a place for worship, and a spiritual adviser of their creed. The Bosnians and Herzegovinians are said to be perfectly satisfied with Austrian rule, and would gladly hail the complete annexation of the provinces to the Austrian empire. The enforcement of the law throughout the provinces and the extirpation of the bandits who formerly preyed on life and property, have brought about a high degree of prosperity and Bosnia is becoming a favorite resort for tourists, to whom it offers many novelties. The Austrian government has not, as yet, taken any formal steps toward annexation, but there is believed to be no foundation for the current reports that such a step will be shortly taken.

The report that the sultan intends to cede all Servia to Russia, in discharge of the war indemnity, is not credited in Vienna, but there is no hesitation in believing that such action would be regarded as a casus belli.

The Russian [illegible] of the empire have been instructed to discharge Jews from the police service. Large numbers of Jews have been in the police service and have displayed a marked aptitude for that kind of work. The detection of Nihilist conspiracy has in nearly every instance been brought about by Jewish agents of the secret service. The Nihilists, it is said, will rejoice that the Israelites are no longer to pay upon them, while the absence of this class of detectives will undoubtedly make more perilous the chance of discovering Nihilistic plots.

The meeting of miners at Newcastle will probably win a sharp conflict on the subject of socialism. John Burns, the socialist leader, has lately been advocating the Labor party with unusual energy, and is strongly in sympathy with the continental plan to identify socialism with the labor movement. The miners are divided on the question and the consequences among them will be a bitter opposition to the Burns idea. A feature of the gathering is the large increase in the number of women delegates, recognizing the fact that female labor will play an important part in the British national mining industry.

The [illegible] at Stuttgart have caused them to be taken to Berlin for trial. The guard of Anarchists in the dock called out something in a little monkey, and the authorities in the vicinity have been ordered to make special investigation as to the extent of the attitude and whether a concerted movement is intended.

To-day's rumors in regard to Russia, Turkey and the Dardanelles are to the effect that no action may be looked for from the part of England, and that Lord Salisbury will invite the powers to a conference on the subject. The British office has given forth no official intimation, but everybody seems to be sure that something of the kind is going to be done.

Mendelsohn, the proprietor of a theater in Berlin, has been arrested for forging a large number of bills. He enjoyed an apparently profitable business and was highly respected. The discovery of his forgeries is said to be due to singular oversight in the form of a letter in an imitated handwriting which was otherwise perfect in every detail.

A [illegible] is ordered to the German expedition in East Africa, where the Arab slave traders have been carrying on a severe fight with the Germans, the latter commanded by Emin Pasha, supported by Lieutenants Stuhlmann and Langheld. At last accounts Emin Pasha was on his way to Lake Tanganyika, on route for Uganda, the slave traders were marching him and his forces at every opportunity. Two staff of Europeans tried to send goods after the Germans, but the journey had to be abandoned, some of them wounded. Now comes a dispatch from Zanzibar stating that in a skirmish at Lake Tanganyika, the natives probably slaughtered Lieutenant Stuhlmann in a skirmish. Further particulars as to the safety of the German force are anxiously awaited.

General Alikhanoff, the Russian commander and oriental diplomat, has been arrested at Cabul, the capital of Afghanistan. He is charged with being a spy in the employ of the Russian government. General Alikhanoff was captured while disguised as a Mussulman dervish. It is probable that extreme measures will be taken to do the Emeer of Afghanistan the [illegible] of this important person, who is considered by the British authorities to be one of the most daring, able and dangerous men in the Russian service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—As an outgrowth of Senator Farwell's scheme for artificial rain production artificial frost prevention is now suggested. W. G. Kniffen of Chicago has written a letter to Secretary Rusk on the subject. His theory is that levels of artificial mists between the radiation of heat from the earth. He suggests that the machinery and materials used by Colonel Dyrenfurth in causing rain be tested as a means for bringing the clouds closer to the earth and of creating a sort of fog which would be a preventive against the ravages of frost.

A Newspaper Change.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—The most important newspaper changes announced in this city for some time occurred this morning in The Public Ledger office. Wm. V. McKean, for more than two years managing editor, retired and was succeeded by L. Clarke Davis as managing editor. Mr. McKean will continue on the staff of The Ledger at full pay and will write occasional editorials, but will be relieved from the responsibility of managing the business of the journal and taking its sentiments. The announcement is made that George W. Childs will himself hereafter be editor in chief. Mr. McKean, who was for many years connected with The Inquirer, became managing editor of the Ledger soon after its purchase by Mr. Childs. Mr. Davis has been connected with the Ledger about three years. He was formerly managing editor of The Enquirer, and editorial writer for The Evening Telegraph. He is a brilliant journalist.

California Robbers Arrested.

VISALIA, Cal., Sept. 7.—William Dalton and Wiley Dean were captured late yesterday about three miles south of Traver Cliff. Two men were seen to ride up to the house of Maggie Rucker, immediately Sheriff Ley and Deputy Wiley went to the house. Wm. Dalton came to the door and was ordered to throw up his hands. He obeyed. He was then taken prisoner with a rifle. He ordered him to surrender and Dean did so. Two horses and a mule were also captured. The men bear the signs of hard living. The men answer the description of the Cerro robbers. Dalton is a short and Dean a tall man. It is thought the robbers lay for the purpose of getting money for the band of Gordon Dalton. Dean and Dalton stated that they were near Traver on the night of the robbery. They say they can prove being in Traver on that day.

Glenwood Springs is a grand place for the state convention. Think how delightful people will be when the delegates come back clean with a clean ticket.

Labor day was generally observed throughout the country with appropriate exercises. It is a fitting recognition of the importance and dignity of the men who, as the saying is, work with their hands. In a certain sense, the tide of the census every man counts on. It is worth something just to be a man. Our novel repast, our society, all our arts and laws, all our property and possessions, are made and used for the benefit of men. The greatest blessings of life are open to all men—life, health, the satisfaction that lies in honest work. These are not dependent upon social position, or education, or wealth. It is worth striving for to be a good man, and a famous man, and a rich man, but after all the greatest thing is to be a man. It is the recognition of the principle which makes the American government the best in the world; it is its application which makes the United States the best place to live in in the world. Labor day is well spent if it serves no other purpose than to emphasize this truth.

THE MISSISSIPPI VIEW OF A PHILIPPIC.

It was a peculiar idea which led to publication in the September Century of Henry Cabot Lodge's article on "The Distribution of Ability in the United States." Few people would have thought of going over the six volumes of Appleton's "Cyclopedia of American Biography," and arranging the names thereof according to birthplace, race and occupation, and still fewer, if any, would think it worth while to do it. The results are interesting and valuable.

Some of the results of Mr. Lodge's figures are recorded in the six colonies. Of these it is found that Massachusetts has 2,36 names, New York ranking next with 2,076, then Pennsylvania with 1,637, Connecticut with 1,190, Virginia with 1,[illegible], Maryland with 512, and so on down to Texas, which has only one.

By groups of states New England supplies 5,456, the Middle States 6,621, the Southern states 3,195, and the Western states 641.

These calculations show the following nativities: English, 10,376; Scotch Irish, 1,[illegible]; German, 680; Huguenot, 560; Welsh, 150; Dutch, 336; Scandinavian, 31; Scotch, 7; Italian, 7; Swiss, 5; Greek, 3; Russian, 1; Polish 1.

The figures are interesting in the highest degree, and very valuable deductions are to be drawn from them, but it is safe to be upon the safe side. It would be manifestly unfair to claim that the Southern states, newly and yet thinly settled, were to be judged in a manner by the older states of the east. Ability is manifested in many ways and on the frontier is likely to be diverted into the channels which lead to the encyclopedia. An allowance might properly to be made for the disparity of area and of population. The fact is that some of the most prominent men against him in a population of 62,000,000 were set down by influence if not by actual residence on the Atlantic coast, with editors, publishers and encyclopedia editors in the east, than he would had he lived back in the great eighty years ago. Many of the names in Appleton's would not have gained admission upon their present record had they lived fifty years later.

Another thing which counts against the newer states is the civil war. Of the 14,943 names 1892 are called soldiers, being the largest number of any one occupation, or that of "statesman." But the credit for greatness in soldiering is an exceptional one, and open to the newer west much less than to the east.

Another consideration, fully recognized by Mr Lodge, is that the figures are without regard to population, and therefore intensely partial to the states having the largest population during the early part of the century.

But giving full allowance for all those considerations the figures are still remarkable. They show how during the first century the republic was directed by the New England mind with the aid of New York and Pennsylvania. They show, as Mr. Lodge observes, the blight of variety in the south upon a people naturally as active in mind and body as those of the north, and also, "that the people who have succeeded in the United States and have produced the ability of the country are those who became most quickly and more thoroughly Americans." This is probably the most important and practical conclusion to be drawn from the study of those figures. It is certainly pleasant to find evidence that the best of the country will continue to be directed by loyal Americans while for the bigotry and ignorance tends to wane.

LITERARY NOTES.

There is now no considerable public interest in the great problem applicable to the solution of that wonderful something that came to life in the latter half of the Nineteenth century. It is not so important a part in our daily life that a popular treatment of the subject has been lost by the event. It is hardly welcome. We are thereby left to see in the current issue of the Chautauqua Work, that Dr. Lewis Sheldon, one of the journal's ablest writers, has begun a series of timely and important articles on the subject of Bible study for the Chautauqua for 1893. The series is to be, apparently, to take up the Old Testament in the light of the Nineteenth century, so far as it is the educational methods of dealing with many portions of it are concerned, and continuing in that course to the very end. He has therefore commenced his work by taking up the Book of Ruth and his contemporaries that really furnish the basis of modern electricity. Up to about the beginning of the present century, there was no available way of getting electrical energy in sufficient quantity to utilize for anything more than small experiments. With the intention of the wheel plus the voltaic battery, lately described and illustrated in Dr. Bell's first paper in the Electrical World of Sept 5 the scientific world was put in possession of a source of electricity considerable enough to encourage practical applications. The author of these papers is evidently one who believes in experimental methods for in intimate connection with the statement of facts may be found carefully selected experiments, with the working details clearly given, so that they can be readily performed even by those of no previous experience or acquaintance with electrical matters. The articles are well illustrated and give promise of filling a gap that has heretofore existed between popular and rather superficial treatments, and more scientific and forbidding mathematical treatises, in a way of intelligent readers can follow the subject as Dr Bell treats it and doubtless many a young man will find these articles the starting point of his electrical education. The Electrical World is the pioneer American journal of its class, and the largest in the world. The subscription price dollars a year which includes postage. Newsdealers supply it at an expense of ten cents a week. The publishers are the W. J. Johnston company, Ltd., 167-177 Times building, New York. The articles by Dr Bell will run for several months. Those subscribing now will have the series complete.

Rudyard Kipling's new novel, written in collaboration with Wolcott Balestier for The Century, is entitled "The Naulahka, a Tale of West & East." It is a story of America and India. The principal characters live in a "booming" Colorado town, where the story opens, but the scene quickly shifts to the court of an Indian maharajah whither the hero and the heroine journey to meet with most varied experiences. The story will begin in the November Century.

Mrs. Burton Harrison, the author of "The Anglo-American," has written a new novel of New York life which The Century will print. It is said to deal with divorce.

The first volumes of G. P. Putnam's Sons for the fall season comprise:

THE LIFE OF THOMAS PAINE. By Moncure Daniel Conway, author of "Omitted Chapters of History Disclosed in the Life and Papers of Edmund Randolph." Two volumes, over illustrated.

Mr. Conway has personally traversed the ground, in Europe and America, and has obtained from them fresh light, not only on Paine, but on various obscure events in American and European history with whom he was associated. A large amount of unpublished correspondence will be included.

THE DIVINE COMEDY OF DANTE ALIGHIERI, or Purgatory. Edited by Kate Milman Rossetti, with an introduction by Colonel Fitzwilliam and with portrait of Mazzoni and fac-simile of the Bill of Rights. The work is complete in one volume.

"Our foreign labors may not be so widely known and in the public mind as those of some of our more gifted brethren, because we have purposely declined public positions in the federal council where his capabilities would have fitted him to place in the front rank of public knowledge and esteem in the hearts of the six hundred of his country's public servants and fame could ever place around them. He was indeed the people's choice, a people's government—Extract from letter.

The story of Sidney's unpaid work at Dieppe, where he was fighting in warm sympathy with Holland's protest against Spanish tyranny, and of his brave death is quite sufficient reason for modesty to rank him among the heroes, even had not his contemporaries placed him there by acclamation, with extraordinary appreciation of the lessons and the qualities which gained the earth for only thirty-five years.

JESUS CHRIST AND THE CONVERSION OF SAUL. By the Rev. Edward W. Fowler, M. A., Fellow of Lincoln college, Oxford. (No. VI, in the Series of the Nation series.)

The author expects to complete his work in four parts, so that each volume covers a distinct period of history, and will be complete in itself.

SPEAKING OF TEXAS.

Major Jasper McBride is a Texas gentleman, who has been spending the summer in New York. A few days ago he went to the landlord of his hotel in a state of great excitement. He said:

"The immorality that goes on in a big city like New York is just incredible, and the way strangers are taken in is perfectly scandalous. I've been here three weeks, and without knowing it I have been swindled every day."

"How did it come about?" asked the landlord.

"You see there is a lemonade stand near the hotel, and every day I've been getting one or more glasses of lemonade."

"Wasn't it real lemonade?"

"The lemonade itself was all right. I'm not complaining of the quality of the lemonade, but the way the fellow who sells it gouged me."

"How did he come to cheat you?"

"Easiest thing in the world. You see he has a sign up, 'Lemonade, five cents and five cents.' That means if he squeezes half a lemon in the glass it is three cents, and if he squeezes a whole lemon in it is five cents. I didn't know this, and the man who keeps the lemonade stand, making out that I was from Texas, asked me eight cents, and when I kicked he pointed to his sign and said, three and five are eight cents, and I've been paying eight cents for a three cent glass of lemonade ever since I've been in New York. I didn't find out my mistake until today. If I had him out on a Texas prairie I'd make a personal matter of it."—Texas Siftings.

OF THE POSTAL SERVICE

VISITING MAN INTERVIEWS POSTMASTER GENERAL WANAMAKER.

Eight Thousand Pieces of Mail Deposited Every Minute—Almost Two Billions of Ordinary Letters a Year—Sixty-three Thousand Postmasters.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—A short time since I had a very interesting talk with Postmaster General Wanamaker on the great postal machine which Uncle Sam keeps for the accommodation of the people. I found Mr. Wanamaker enthusiastic over the usefulness, the magnitude and the possibilities of the postal service. "There are not many people," said Mr. Wanamaker, "who appreciate the vast mass of this service. The postoffice department is not quite a hundred years old. It is true the postal system was started under the government in 1792, but it was not till 1799 that a permanent establishment was provided for. A hundred years ago our postoffices carried but 2,000 letters and pieces of mail per day. Now more than 8,000 letters and packages are dropped into the mails every minute of the year.

"I often think of the difference between the postoffice department of 1792 when the first postmaster general under the constitution came into office and the same department of this day. Then the postage on a single letter was six cents for thirty miles, sixty miles, eight cents, and so on at increasing cost for greater distances till a letter carried 450 miles or farther—half the distance from New York to Chicago—cost twenty-five cents. A single letter was not permitted to weigh more than a quarter of an ounce. Not a daily mail existed anywhere. There were only 100 postoffices in the entire country. The length of all mail routes did not exceed 2,000 miles. The entire annual revenue of the service fell far short of $60,000. Then the country was sparsely settled and not much more than a wilderness. The other day I came across some queer recommendations of Postmaster General Gideon Granger in 1806 concerning the transportation of the mails between Athens, Ga., and New Orleans. Here they are.

"This part of the route ought to be surveyed and marked out, and cleared of trees and underbrush four feet wide. It would be rather an injury than an advantage to clear wider than is necessary for a single horse, as it has been found to encourage a thick growth of underbrush.

"The bridges should not be deep fords. Two logs may be laid across it, so as to enable the rider to cross with the mails upon his back, and swim his horse alongside. Two cabooses either 12½ yards wide, in which the rider with the mail should be covered, the horse swimming alongside the canoe.

"Four years later we find Mr Granger congratulating the country upon the tremendous strides made by the postoffice in expediting the mails. He says that whereas in 1800 it required to write from Portland to Savannah and receive a reply forty days, it could be done in 1810 in twenty-seven days, between Philadelphia and Lexington, Ky., the time had been shortened from thirty two days to sixteen; between Philadelphia and Nashville from forty-four days to thirty and between New York and Cincinnati from twenty days to twelve. This was indeed an improvement, but their fast time of 1810 seems almost laughable to us now.

"When the postoffice department was forty years old, continued Mr Wanamaker, "the locomotive began to displace the pony as a carrier of the mails. By that time the service had assumed some magnitude. There were about 10,000 postoffices, post routes covered 113,000 miles, and the annual receipts reached nearly $3,000,000, though only twenty-postoffices received daily mails. But the real growth of the postal system has been in the last thirty years. Since 1860 the population of the country has only a little more than doubled, while the magnitude of the operations of this department has increased five fold.

"We have now such a vast machine that I hardly know how to describe it for you. In the first place, we have an army of 150,000 employes. There are 63,000 postmasters, 10,000 carriers in the city free delivery service, 6,000 in the railway postoffices, 12,000 clerks besides mail carriers, inspectors and the employees of the general office. We have 63,000 postoffices, and the total length of the mail routes in the country, not including carrier routes in cities, is 430,000. Every working day the mails travel a distance equal to forty-one times around the globe. More than one-half of all the postoffices in the country are supplied with a daily mail, and the great majority of those with many mails per day. In the last thirty years our system has undergone great extension and perfection.

"The free delivery service now takes mail to the doors of millions of citizens from two to eight times per day, without extra cost. That has been added in the last quarter of a century, as has the great money order system, by which from any one of nearly 10,000 postoffices sums from one cent to a $100 may be sent to any part of the world with absolute safety. The people use this system to the extent of $3,000,000 a week. Another great step in postal progress was the development within the last thirty years of the railway mail service. In 1860 we used 27,000 miles of railroad for carrying mails, at an expense of a little more than $3,000,000 with only 600 employees. Now we use 160,000 miles of road, spend $21,000,000, and have 6,000 employees.

"The men employed in this service use 2,800 cars. In a year they travel (in crews) 133,000,000 miles. While traveling they distribute the enormous, almost inconceivable, number of 7,000,000,000 pieces of mail matter besides receipting for, recording, protecting and distributing nearly 17,000,000 registered packages and more than 1,000,000 through registered pouches. This great task is performed with such care that only four letters in 10,000 are sent wrong. This does not mean that four letters in 10,000 are lost, only that in distributing 10,000 letters an average of four mistakes is made by which the transmission and delivery of those four missives may be delayed.

"Considering the difficulty of the work, that every clerk must carry in his mind the most direct routes to thousands of postoffices, these conditions constantly changing with changes of railway schedules and the time of the day at which the distribution is made, the result is really most wonderful approaching nearer the ideal than any other branch of the public service in this or any other country."

Surprisingly few indeed. Ninety-nine out of a hundred [illegible] and deliveries are the fault of the writers and not of the service. The safety of our mails is really most remarkable. It is estimated that we carry in a year 1,854,000,000 ordinary letters. The total number of employees was about 14,000, which you can see was a loss from this cause of one letter in 132,500. What is the average money value of a letter in the mails? That is something which we can arrive at only by comparison, as the values of letters are not declared and officials are not permitted to inquire what letters contain.

"It is interesting to know, however, that the average value of the money letters inclosed in the dead letter office is $1.63; of the letters containing negotiable paper, $13.07. The average value of all letters opened there is twenty-five cents and two mills. At this average the value of all the ordinary letters in the mail in a year would be $467,000,000 and of this great sum only $7,000 is lost through carelessness or crime on the part of employees. Even this low ratio of loss will be greatly reduced now that lottery letters, which tempt so many postal employees, are excluded from the mails.

"Now that I am on the subject of losses in the mails," continued the postmaster general, "I will tell you some surprising facts. Of more than six and a half millions of pieces of mail received at the dead letter office in a year only a million contained anything of value. It is almost incredible, but true, that nearly one-half of those letters contained no signature by means of which they could be returned to the writers. They consist in the return of letters from one member of a family to another and unsigned 'Your loving husband, Harry,' or 'Your affectionate mother,' or 'Your own little wife,' and so on. Last year there came to the dead letter office 14,000 letters which contained lottery tickets, and 200,000 contained pictures and papers unfit for circulation. Of course all these were destroyed. Half a million letters came from foreign countries and these were returned to the countries whence they came. Two hundred thousand letters were restored unopened to the writers. Nearly 400,000 letters which contained inclosures were restored to the writers, and about three and three quarters millions were destroyed, it being impossible to find the owners.

"I wish the people who use the mails could be made to understand that the observance of a few simple rules would greatly reduce the number of lost letters. A good practice is always to scan the address of a letter before posting it. All writers of letters do not care to place their names and addresses upon the corner of the envelope, but if they would do so they would be few indeed of lost letters. We couldn't by law or regulation require affectionate mothers and wives and husbands and sweethearts and sons and daughters to sign their full names, and have their address either at the top or the bottom of their letters, but if they would do this a million and a half more letters would be restored to their owners every year."

WALTER WELLMAN.

A Story of Mrs. Potter.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—The gossip of various sorts that has recently been going the rounds regarding Mrs. Cora Potter, the actress, recalls a singular talisman which she carried away from New York with her. On the opening night of "Antony and Cleopatra," just as Mrs. Potter had taken her seat in the barge before making her entrance, a young man in the company ran up to her, and pressing something into her hand said: "Wear this about you when you go upon the stage and your success is assured. Do not lose it on any account." Mrs. Potter opened her hand and saw what seemed to be a dingy piece of cord. She thrust it into her girdle and thought no more about it until the last curtain had fallen when she sought and obtained an explanation from the donor.

A waiter in a French restaurant had hanged himself that morning. The young actor had a room over the restaurant, and when the body was cut down he begged for a strand of the rope. It was given him, and having the success of "Antony and Cleopatra" very much at heart, he divided it and gave Mrs. Potter half. A piece of the cord wherewith a man has hanged himself is said to never fail to bring good fortune to its possessor but to part with it is certain disaster. The horses were packed during the New York run of "Antony and Cleopatra," and when the fair Cora sailed away her uncanny talisman was securely sewed inside one of her trunks.

President Harrison.

Secretary Halford says of President Harrison that he has developed a very remarkable facility for turning from one thing to another, and for keeping a half dozen things running in his mind at once. Any man can do this who is put in a place where he must see some of callers every day, one right after the other, each with a new business to discuss. To this quality of the president's mind, this ease of turning from one thing to another, and the corresponding ease with which he relieves his mind of everything when the time comes to do so and to rest or sleep, I attribute the remarkably good health which he has enjoyed since he left Indianapolis.

TO SUCCEED EDMUNDS.

Redfield Proctor to Be from the Cabinet to the Senate.

Governor Page, of Vermont, has named Secretary of War Redfield Proctor as senator from that state to succeed Senator George F. Edmunds who has lately resigned. As his resignation does not take effect until the meeting of congress in December it is expected that Secretary Proctor will continue his duties in the cabinet till that date. This will give the President ample time to choose his successor.

REDFIELD PROCTOR.

Redfield Proctor was born in Cavendish, Windsor county, Vermont, in 1831, the son of Hon. Deloe Proctor who was a member of the Vermont supreme court from 1862 to 1867. He was graduated from Dartmouth in 1851 and after and from the law department of the University of Albany. Early in 1861 he enlisted in the Third regiment of Vermont volunteers and on the 30th of June that year was appointed lieutenant and quartermaster. The next September he was made major of the Fifth Vermont and a year later he became colonel of the Fifteenth Vermont with which he was mustered out in August 1864.

After practicing law a short time and residing on his farm he entered the marble business in 1869. He was appointed secretary of war in 1889. In the meantime he held many civil offices serving in the state senate and house and in 1888 was elected governor. He was chairman of the Vermont delegation in the Chicago convention by which General Harrison was nominated.

American Plays Gaining Favor.

The rapid increase in the number of theatrical stock companies this fall is likely to be, in fact, one which American playwrights, tainted with the lack of native playwrights. The latest stock company that has been formed is that of Mr. [illegible] He will have four plays in its repertory and two of them have been written by American authors. A Modern Match by Clyde Fitch, who made a long step toward fame by writing "Beau Brummel" and "Geoffrey Middleton, Gentleman," by Mary [illegible], is the name of the play which won the New York World prize. Mr Fiske says he intends that he intends to do all that he can to encourage the growth of a purely American school of dramatic writing. Billy Crane has expressed similar sentiments, and both men are giving practical evidence that they intend to keep their promises. America will by and by be the play producing country for the world.

THE QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO
That set-tled in Pueblo half a century ago, near what is now Baker City, a man who has since become a home-stead and stock ranch of that country. This man is no other than Mr John Stewart, one of the wealthiest and most influential citizens in the county. In a recent letter he says: "I had been suffering from pain in my back and severe kidney complaint for some time and had used many remedies without any real or temporary relief. The pains in my back had become so severe that I was prevented from attending to my work and I could not move about without the use of a cane. Hearing through a friend of the wonderful cures effected by Oregon Kidney Tea, I was induced to try it, and the relief it gave me was so great that I found that relief and before using half the contents of the box the pains in my back and side disappeared. I have every faith in the virtues of the Oregon Kidney Tea, and can conscientiously recommend it to my friends. I would not be without it for anything."
Oregon Kidney Tea cures backache, incontinence of urine, brick dust sediment, scalding or pain in the urine, urinary weakness, all affections of the kidneys or urinary organs of either sex.

CITY COUNCIL.

Sewer Matters—A Long and Fruitless Viaduct Discussion.

The city council met yesterday evening with all the members present with the exception of Aldermen Finegan.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting a petition from taxpayers was presented asking that the sewer work be done as the work is now done on the water works, i. e., that men with families might not be left idle, but the sewer work is being done, it stated, by contractors who are keeping boarding houses and employing tramps and "dagoes." Two hundred and eighteen names were signed to the petition. On motion of Alderman Davis it was referred to the sewer committee. A second was from the residents of Goshen's addition, and asked that a light might be put near the under crossing east of East Costilla street. The petition was referred to the street and ditch committee, with power to act.

A petition was read by the city clerk from a number of citizens asking payment for damages caused by the breaking of the city ditch. Referred to the finance committee.

Alderman Bartlett moved that the water main on Sahwatch street on the line of the Denver, Texas and Fort Worth road be extended a block and a half to protect certain buildings in that quarter from fire. Referred to the fire and water committee to report at the next meeting.

Alderman Robbins wished to know what had become of the petition to have stone sidewalk built on Huerfano, between Stockbridge's and Cascalo avenue, which had been referred to the street committee. Alderman Rouse stated that the committee had decided it would be a hardship upon the people at that point to be forced to build a walk there at present. A motion was made that the parties owning property adjoining this gravel walk be ordered to put in a stone sidewalk. Carried. It was also carried that a stone walk be put in to replace the wooden walk about opposite No. 15 East Huerfano street.

Before closing the consideration of the condition of the walks Alderman Davis moved that the city be ordered to have the porches removed that are above the grade on West Huerfano street. This motion was carried.

The report of the city clerk was read showing $5,004.78 cash on hand at the opening of the month.

An ordinance was to read to amend an ordinance concerning licenses.

A large number of bills, including one of $8,910.40 to D. McShane for Lake Avenue work, were read by the clerk and allowed.

Ordered that when the council adjourn it be to next Monday evening. Carried.

Alderman Bartlett moved that the city engineer and the city engineer for a 30 foot viaduct on West Huerfano be advertised for bids to be opened on September 9th. A motion followed with numerous amendments and amendments. Alderman Rouse did not think the city could afford to be altogether independent of the D. & R. G. in this matter, and he moved some further delay. After remarks by Aldermen Bartlett, Davis, Dunbar and Mayor Sprague, Alderman Dunbar moved to lay the matter on the table until next Monday night, which was carried.

Alderman Leech asked what the street and ditch committee had done about repairing sidewalks in West Colorado Springs. The city clerk said that the property holders had been notified but Captain De Courcey had responded that he had built a good gravel sidewalk there and it had all been washed down into the street; now he did not propose to bother with it further.

Alderman Eaton asked about the foot bridge across Shook's Run at the foot of Cascade street. Alderman Rouse said that it would be necessary to build a stone bridge there before very long. Perhaps next year and the street and ditch committee had not enough funds to do anything now. They hoped to get the foot bridge on East Huerfano before very long.

The council then adjourned.

State Pharmaceutists.

The State Pharmaceutical society will convene in this city Monday for a three days' session. This association is composed of the registered pharmacists of the state, who meet annually to read papers and discuss subjects of interest to the profession. There will be about 100 of the druggists present during the meeting, and they have already begun to arrive. The meetings will be held in Turner hall and will begin this afternoon. Mr. Chas. Ford of Denver is the president of the association and Felix Neiman of Denver, secretary. Mr. G. Storer is the local secretary and has charge of arrangements.

A number of the well known wholesale drug houses and supply companies of the country will be represented and make displays during the convention. Among them are Myer Bros. of St. Louis, Morrison & Plumter of Chicago, Solon Palmer of New York, dealers in perfumery; Grosvenor & Richardson, dealers in plasters, Chicago.

A ball will be given this evening at the Antlers in honor of the visitors.

Mrs. Barry-Lake.

A fitting climax to the Labor day demonstration is the securing of Mrs. Barry Lake by the trades' assembly, who will speak at the First Christian church this evening. The labor rostrum has no more eloquent champion than the above named lady. Her reputation as a speaker and a woman stands at the head of the list. The lady speaks from conviction. She has seen labor in all its forms from the prosperous mechanic to the down trodden sewing girl. If you are interested in the cause of labor, don't fail to hear this very interesting speaker. Admission free.

An Important Capture.

While over on the west side Sunday evening Officer Allison, of the city police force, saw two men sneak out of a box car and make for the tall monument marking the Monument. He went over and stopped them on suspicion. On searching them he found both armed, with which he took them to the city hall. Here they were thoroughly searched and the following articles were found on their persons: Four gold watches, three rings, pair opera glasses, four masonic charms, three revolvers, seven pair of ladies' bracelets, fourteen ladies' pins, sixteen gold rings, a number of rings, five pair of earrings, ten gentlemen's pins, thirteen gold watch chains, two necklaces, eleven sleeve buttons, three skeleton keys, and a number of pieces of money, varying from ten cents to fifty cents, of rare and valuable dates.

Marshal Dana took the men to Denver, where they were identified as Thos. Murray and William Condon, two professional crooks. They had burglarized a number of houses in both Denver and Pueblo and had about all the booty with them when captured. They think Colorado Springs is overestimated as a healthy place of residence.

Ball Games vs. Crowells.

The largest crowd that has assembled in this city to witness a ball game in years was at Athletic park yesterday afternoon. The Jackson and Crowell base ball teams crossed bats for the second time and the Jacksons won by a score of 12 to 4. In fact the Crowells were not in it. The game started in well, but the Jacksons soon forged ahead and got twelve tallies. This completely discouraged the Crowells, as they were unable to hit Evans.

The batteries were Evans and Cotton of Monument for the Jacksons and the Oatmans for the Crowells. Both batteries did good work during the day. The fielding was a little bad on both sides at times. Storer for the Crowells deserves mention for some good fielding, and Howbert on first for the Jacksons did good work. In the last half of the ninth the Crowells picked up some but the game was lost long before that. Following is the score:

The Cricket Match—England vs. America.

Cricket commenced at 10:30 yesterday morning between teams composed of members of the Cheyenne Mountain Country club, representing England and America. England, perhaps, had the stronger of the two teams, and its members did their best to play the national game of their country perfectly as possible. The wicket was good and the usually dry ground was freshened by the showers which had fallen previous to play.

The old country boys won the toss and sent in Vidler and King to face the bowling of Scott and Wood. The two played a good game, King running up a score of 19, and Vidler being dismissed by Scott for 10. Colliran, however, made the top score of the innings, his being the result of careful and well directed hitting. Of the others, Gibbons made 13, Douglas 8 and Roxburgh 7, Scott taking five wickets and Woodward counting for three more, the innings ending for a total of 101.

After a short adjournment for lunch the American representatives went to bat. They, however, could make no stand against the bowling of King and Colliran. The former fairly outbowled himself, taking seven wickets and doing the hat trick by dismissing three men with the successive balls. Ballard was the only American to make any stand, and he certainly worked hard for his 9. The game, therefore, was won by England's representatives with sixty-five runs to spare. Score:

Lady Gray's Jump.

Sunday was a big day at Broadmoor with the balloon ascension and parachute jump in the afternoon and the concert in the evening. Immediately after noon Sunday the people began to move towards the popular pleasure resort until about 4 o'clock when the jump was given. Fully 2000 were clustered on the hills and about the Casino. They went in vehicles and on horseback, while the cars were crowded. The worst part of it was that only a very small part of those who witnessed the feat paid anything toward it, as the hills just west of the Casino permitted everyone to see free of charge who desired to take advantage of it.

It was after 4 o'clock when the balloon Zeo was sufficiently inflated to be floated. Suddenly it shot into the air and went almost straight up for 2000 feet with Lady Gray clinging to the parachute suspended beneath. When at that altitude she cut loose and shot directly down for about fifty feet when the parachute spread and she descended slowly to the earth. She lit in Cheyenne lake where the water was scarcely up to her knees, and was quickly gotten out. It was one of the most successful jumps that Lady Gray has ever made and it is too bad that she did not get more money out of it.

Mr. H. D. Belden, the manager of the party of aeronauts who have been here, is a very successful aeronaut himself and tells some very interesting stories regarding his life. For five years he was with the Baldwin Bros. who originated the parachute jump. Persons who saw the jump Sunday perhaps noticed how Lady Gray swung out from under the parachute. Mr. Belden stated that very often the oscillation is so violent that the aeronaut can look down into the parachute. This might frighten the novice, but the aeronaut knows that the weight of his body will soon get him under the canvass again, even if he should get on top of it. The party went to Cheyenne Sunday night, where the members will perform during the Wyoming state fair.

"Potato Day."

The Monument potato baked and barbecue which occurs yearly is rapidly growing to be as much of an institution as are the "Watermelon days" of Rocky Ford and Rifle, and the "Peach day" of Grand Junction. The crop of delicious mealy tubers on the Divide this year is a big one and a large number of committees are at work preparing to show the whole world what the Divide region can do in the way of providing the good things of life on the festal day, Sept. 22. There will be a barbecue, and all sorts of refreshments will be provided visitors free of all charge. The varied products of the entire Divide, including parts of El Paso, Elbert and Douglas counties, will be properly displayed, so that the occasion will be partly a sort of agricultural fair. There will also be a good free stock show, races and music. Every citizen of El Paso county should do all he can to help on Potato day and should attend himself with his family.

Scanlan's New Play.

Scanlan proposes to make the effort of his life this year. His play will be "Mavourneen." The plot will be laid in Dublin, between 1780 and 1786, when the Irish capital was to the world what Paris is today. The scenery has been prepared with great care and with historical accuracy. The British museum was searched for points in the old Irish scene showing old Trinity college has been painted, and all sorts of out of the way places have been ransacked in order to make the costumes literally true to the place and period of the play.

NEW SOUTHERN TRAINS.

Beginning Sunday, Sept. 8, the Colorado Midland will have four suburban trains each way a day to accommodate the people visiting Ute Pass resorts. Trains will leave the A. T. & S. F. and Midland depot as follows: 8.10 a. m., 10.10 a. m., 1.30 p. m., and 5.00 p. m. They will arrive at 8.00 a. m., 10.40 a. m., 1.40 p. m. and 7.40 p. m. The train leaving at 10.10 a. m. will go to Florissant. The other trains go as far as Woodland Park.

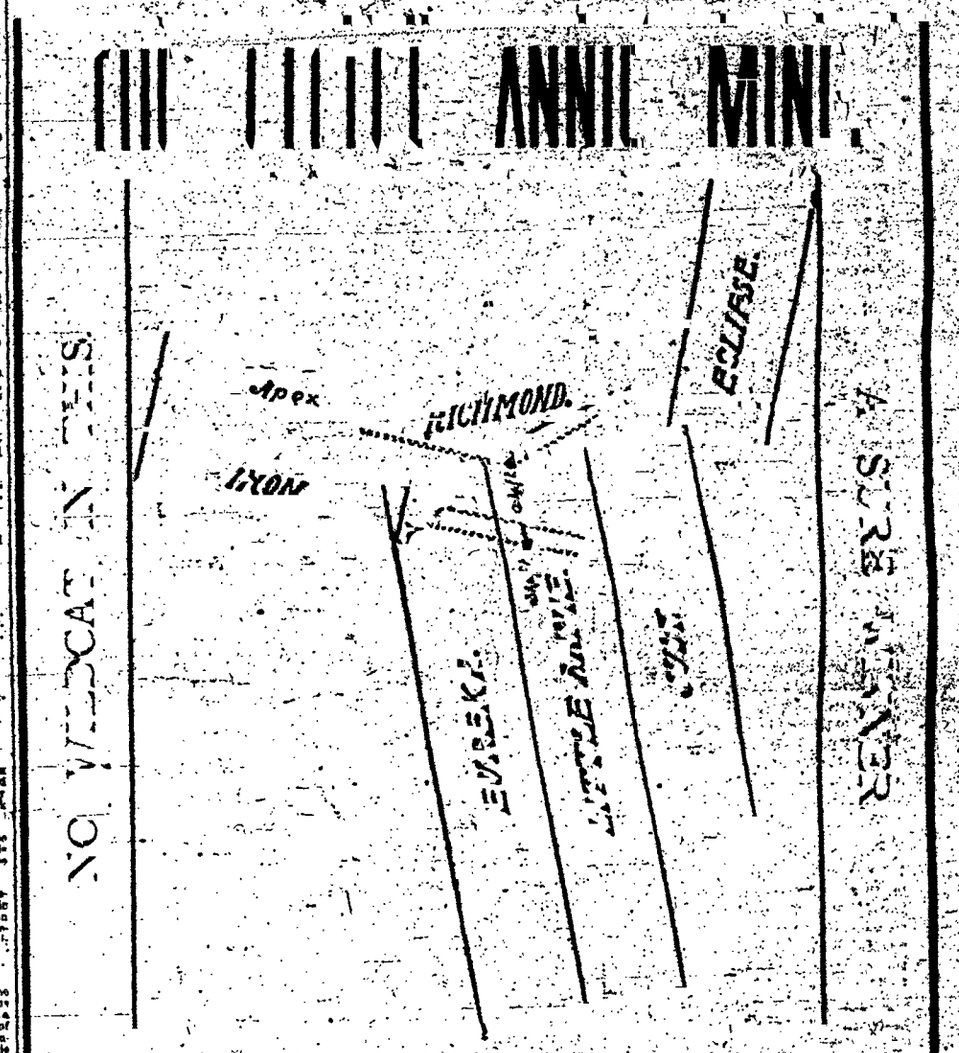
THE LITTLE ANNIE MINE.



The above cut shows the six patented claims now belonging to the Little Annie Mining Company, on Richmond hill, near Aspen. The company is producing steadily and will soon become one of the richest producers in Pitkin county. B. Clark Wheeler purchased the properties and organized the company and is now selling 100,000 more shares of the stock at 20 cents a share to finish paying for the properties. He still owns over three-fourths of the stock and will not sell any more at that price after disposing of this block. The mine is open for inspection. All the net products of the mine will be paid as dividends to stockholders. This is a chance for mining investment that all who seek investments in that line should investigate.

TUESDAY, [illegible] 5, 1891.

John Welsh, a "hobo," was arrested by the police last evening on suspicion of being a pickpocket thief.

Henry Tyng and Thomas Weekly were arrested for fighting and they will have a chance to explain themselves to-day. They are under Marshal Dant's care this morning.

The Revere house, a third-class hotel in Manitou, [illegible] closed its doors, having gotten out by the C. L. Smith Mercantile company of Manitou and a Colorado Springs produce firm yesterday.

The two nines known as the Police and the Gazette Juniors played a very uneven game yesterday morning at the Athletic grounds. The Gazette boys did their best but they couldn't play well enough and were defeated by a score of [illegible] to 11.

Tickets for Miss Harrison's lecture on kindergartens, this evening are for sale at Robinson's drug store and at the Consolidated book store; also at the door. All who are interested in true citizenship should be sure to hear this gifted woman.

A young child of Mr. Frank Sholes, who lives on West Kiowa street, died quite suddenly yesterday morning. It had been complaining for some time but death came unexpectedly. Coroner Marlow was called in but deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Patriarch Richard O. Howard of the Colorado Springs press gets out an eight-page edition of his little paper, The Star, this week in which he reprints some of the favorable opinions which have been bestowed upon it by the press.

In the Jackson-Crowell ball game D. C. Goddard and George Schneider collided violently at second base, and Goddard was quite seriously hurt. After the game he found that he had broken one of the small bones of the leg near the ankle, and he may be laid up for some time.

There will be a union meeting of the W. C. T. U.'s of this city on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the Church of the Strangers. It is hoped that many women will try and be present, as the meeting is for making final arrangements in regard to the state convention to be held here soon.

The session of the Knights of Pythias to Aspen yesterday morning over the Midland was a grand ride. The train carried a fire [illegible] carrying about 200 persons. Family went to this city. The fire cars were handsomely decorated, and the Gazette band, in full uniform, accompanied the excursionists.

A lively fistic [illegible] occurred on Labor Day celebration day. S. A. Bolles, a colored man, who got drunk and raised a violent disturbance with a colored woman. He had decidedly the worst of it in the early part of the fight with a large stone and he was fined $10 and costs for his "[illegible]."

Regular meeting of Pike's Peak camp, No. 8, Woodmen of the World, will be held this evening. Services will begin promptly at 7:30 p. m. There will be work in the First degree, and the team [illegible] by request. And to be present generally at that time. There will be other important business before the camp at this meeting in which all members are interested. A full attendance is [illegible] desired.

County superintendent [illegible] has [illegible] the following at the recent [illegible] examination, that it was the largest [illegible] had ever held before this county, forty-six applicants. Two of them [illegible] in other counties and their papers were sent to the county superintendents there. Of the [illegible] twenty-eight received first grades, thirteen second and eight third grades, and five failed.

There have been filed with the county clerk the incorporation papers of the Ottinger & Davis Lumber company, which will do business in this city. The firm is composed of Mr. Giles Ottinger, Mr. E. W. Davis, Mr. Joe P. Fowler, and Mr. Fred C. [illegible], all of whom were connected with the St. John & Marsh Lumber company. The new firm will occupy the quarters of the old company. Our business men will welcome these gentlemen back to their ranks. The capital stock of the company is $25,000.

A [illegible] of [illegible] C. J. G. Gilbonson, who is well known [illegible] Gazette's report, United Press telegraph operator, was married to Miss Lucia M. Fouts, at the residence of the bride's parents on North Oak street, on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The wedding was a private one, only the family and a few friends being present. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Lucas, pastor of the Christian church. The happy couple have gone to housekeeping at 115 East Cimarron street, where they will play the pleasant role of host and host[illegible] to their many friends among the young people in this city.

A Midnight Bell.

The event of the season will take place Monday evening next, when the doors of our new opera house will be thrown open to the public, and for the [illegible] Hoyt's admirable new comedy, "A Midnight Bell," has been secured as the opening attraction. "A Midnight Bell" [illegible] in this city last season. Its popularity has been so convincingly attested all over the country that its merits will require no further advertising. The humor of "A Midnight Bell" is of the genuine and [illegible] fashion, its delicate, and its characters flesh and blood. Moreover its success is assured by the [illegible] of the people engaged in interpreting it.

The play recalls the village [illegible] of homely, but honest, life.

The thread of the narrative, binding the [illegible] together, is very [illegible], but few will find any great fault with this [illegible] so long as they [illegible] girls, [illegible] and [illegible] actors in the [illegible] thus strong [illegible] Dry humor is a quality to [illegible] of simple country [illegible] this play. Mr. Hoyt's [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] life, and it enters not that some of the incidents are exaggerated in order to make them more interesting and humorous.

RACING AT THE COUNTRY CLUB.

Crowd [illegible] Broadmoor's Mile [illegible]

The first day in the week of sport at Broadmoor closed late yesterday afternoon [illegible] The weather was as uncertain as to the interesting races of the afternoon as could have been desired. All day the sun shone upon Broadmoor in the most encouraging way, and large numbers of people flocked to the club grounds by nearly all the various means of travel known to mankind. At 3 o'clock a good-sized number of crowded electric cars had brought a long string of non paying spectators of the races to stand without the fence, and a still greater number to enlarge the funds of the Country club.

The half-mile track was in good condition, and at a little after 3 the horses entered for the 200 yards flat pony race for the members of the club, were on the scratch. They were in the following order: Mr. Atwill's Chico, ridden by Bengiotti; Mr. Ferris' Puck, ridden by the owner; Mr. Edwall's Bettina, ridden by the owner; Mr. Pretorius' Don, ridden by Byrne. The judges for the day were Messrs. Robinson, Fisher and White. Starter, Mr. J. H. Brauer. The race was well run with little excitement and with few changes of place. The horses of Mr. Ferris won easily in 19 seconds, with Chico 2d, Don 3d, and Bettina 4th. The entrance money furnished a prize for the winner.

Some time elapsed before the ponies entered for the one-fourth mile flat race, free for all, pony under 14.1. Purse for winner $25. The horses were started as follows: Mr. Vidler's Pet, ridden by the owner; Mr. Pretorius' Don, ridden by Madden, and Mr. Calloway's Henry, ridden by Steele. Henry led from the first with Pet following closely from start to finish, Don keep a number of lengths behind throughout the race. When the three horses came past the judges Henry led by about a length, covering in 27 3-5 seconds.

The third race was a one-half mile flat, free for all, no limit as to height, weight over 110 pounds. Purse for winner $30, second money $10. Racing shirts were Mr. Johnson's Dandy, ridden by the owner, Mr. Walker's Brown Dick, ridden by Jackson. This race was far superior to either of the [illegible] that preceded. Brown Dick held second place, running behind Dandy until half the [illegible] had been covered, when he crept up and held [illegible] position until the third quarter. Then Pat's west shoulder appeared and continued [illegible] until the [illegible] reached, when Brown Dick gained rapidly and won by about a length amid great applause. Time, [illegible]. This was the best race of the afternoon, and at its close the excitement of the assembled crowd was [illegible].

The fourth race was a fourth mile hurdle, open for members of the club only. Ponies under 14.1. The entries were as follows: Willow, Robinson, Ferris, Fisher. The horses were ridden by their owners, with the exception of Mr. Fisher's which was ridden by McNeil. There were on the track two hurdles and a [illegible] jump. Mr. Wilkeox, on "Uncle Dick," led throughout, his horse taking the hurdles in good style and winning easily, with Mr. Robinson's in second place and Mr. Ferris in third. The most interesting feature of the race was the struggle in the first half between the mares of Mr. Ferris and Mr. Fisher, each of the latter being [illegible] until nearing the home stretch when Mr. Ferris' horse succeeded in capturing third [illegible].

[illegible] when the horses of Mr. Wilkeox, Wood and Johnson came to the hurdle to run the race over the jump, the one made at Pitchfork, Austin. Weight over 130 pounds. To the winner $10, second money $10. Rudolph rode for Mr. Wilkeox, T. S. Wilson for Mr. Wood, and "Billy" Steele for Mr. Johnson. The last came to the scratch confident of victory and mounted on the swiftest horse of the trio. Victory would surely have been his had he paid more attention to hurdle jumping. But as he dashed down the track at the head of the race he made a point to rise in his saddle and hold a tight rein when he took the hurdle. The result was that when the second hurdle was reached he lost his balance and fell, receiving a number of bruises. He succeeded in joining the race again, however, and won second place, much to the admiration of his audience. Mr. Wood's Flagger won the race.

This closed the day of sport at the Country club, and the general feeling that it had been a long while since such a day had closed after sport so well worth attending, and with the joy of the hope that in the week of sport so successfully begun the day would have its equal. It is safe to say, and surely all who were there believe that yesterday was a more successful day for sporting men than Broadmoor has ever seen before.

When one such day can be made in this vicinity there is no reason why at some future day Colorado Springs should not become the Lexington or the Saratoga of the W. [illegible].

Gentlemen's Laundried Shirts.

WE wish to call your attention to the Special bargain we offer in a fine Dress Shirt for a few days only. We have just received from The Troy Shirt and Collar Co., of Troy, N. Y., makers of the celebrated "Gold and Silver" Dress Shirts, a large shipment of their finest goods. To introduce to the gentlemen of Colorado Springs our fully equipped

Gents' Furnishing Department

We will sell the first shipment of "Silver" Dress shirts finely laundried, for only $1.00. The regular price of this shirt is $1.[illegible] and $1.50.

The "Gold and Silver" Dress shirts are manufactured from the best obtainable materials on approved patterns, by experienced operators. Possessing all the latest improvements, perfect in fit, and elegant in finish—they are unquestionably the finest shirts upon the market. To prevent dealers from buying three shirts to sell again at a profit we limit the sale to three to one customer. We intend to supply nearly every gentleman in town with these shirts, and DO NOT collect these shirts [illegible] at the store only.
